SUMMARY

In addition to possessing a Bachelor's Degree in Journalism, I believe my skills are not limited to merely understanding the rules of storytelling and communication. I have proven to be an efficient learner in new environments and driven to execute my goals to the best of my abilities and in a timely manner. I most enjoy working within a team with similar passions and goals, and will commit to do their very best at the task at hand, whether that is in the Journalism field, or within hands-on projects.

As a former competitive Division 1 college athlete on the LMU Women's Rowing Team, I fully understand the hard work and dedication necessary to achieve victory. In addition to hours of training, as a coxswain, I regularly met with coaches to analyze data of the competition, we generated race plans from the information and set strategies to win. This experience helped me understand excellence, how to prepare for it while exposing me to next level pressures during the execution of game plans.

Despite the worldwide pandemic that devastated 2020, I wished to continue pursuing positions to explore my skills and find what I was truly passionate for. Interning at The My Hero Project, while it was remote, aided me in finding beauty in storytelling and heroic actions big or small, and allowed me to practice my skills in research, verifying information, and most importantly, diligence in my work during such uncertain times.

Covid-19 had also coincided and challenged me in my additional commitments of leading in YoungLife ministries and being on the Executive Board for my Undergraduate Filipino American Cultural Organization. Even with remote involvement, I enjoyed the challenge of increasing membership involvement and/or attendance to pre-pandemic numbers.

It is of utmost importance to me that I put my best foot forward in the workplace and come ready to perform. Growing up with my family's values, witnessing how my parents operated the family's small business and also being in a competitive athletic environment, my brothers and I were raised to work & commit to success, understand true competition & risk and value personal & professional relationships.
